ABOUT INTERNATIONAL YOUTH EDUCATION & SPORTS FOUNDATION

The iYES Foundation is a Springdale, Arkansas based nonprofit organization dedicated to helping young people discover their passions and grow their world view through cultural exchange, education and sports. We believe that the most important investment that you can make in life is an investment in our youth. They are our future, and what we teach and empower them to accomplish will chart out the course for future generations.

Our mission is to expose our youth and their families to opportunities and resources through cultural exchange, education and sports that will enable them to pursue excellence, achieve their purpose and be empowered to make a difference themselves. Research shows that communities that invest in youth development are in a better position to build social capital and enhance community development. Social capital is defined as the networks of relationships among people who live and work in a particular society, enabling that society to function effectively. The social capital obtained by teaching youth the value of faith, team work, discipline, respect, reciprocity, and leadership is insurmountable and is the key to transforming youth into contributing members of our society. By allowing young people to engage with and experience different cultures, it not only creates goodwill between different groups but also creates more diverse interactions within our communities.
